Brussels, 18 June 2014

CORRESPONDENCE TABLE

Changes made by the Energy Charter Conference to Annexes EM I, NI and EQ I pursuant to changes of the Harmonized Commodity Description and Coding System, (HS) of the World Customs Organisation

The negotiations of the Energy Charter Treaty (ECT), which took place in the years 1991 – 1994, were based on the Harmonized System Nomenclature (HS)<sup>1</sup> 1992 version. Those of the Amendment to the Trade-Related Provisions (Trade Amendment, TA), negotiated between 1995 and 1998, were based on the HS 1996 version. In the meantime the HS has been adapted several times (2002, 2007, 2012). At the 24th Energy Charter Conference held in Nicosia, the Annexes EM I, NI and EQ I have been technically adapted to this evolution of the HS.<sup>2</sup>

The Secretariat hereby presents a correspondence table, which outlines the developments in the nomenclature of the ECT Annexes EM I, NI and EQ I. On the left side the correspondence tables show the version of the authenticated texts of the ECT (1994) and the TA (1998), and on the right side the corresponding items of the HS 2012 version. The tables only list items that have been subject to change.

This correspondence table has been produced for information purposes only and can not be interpreted as legally binding for the Energy Charter Secretariat or the Energy Charter Conference.

Changes made by the Conference decision adapting the Annexes EM I, NI and EQ I to HS changes

I. Background

The Harmonized System (HS) is an internationally standardized nomenclature for the description, classification and coding of goods, developed and maintained by the World Customs Organisation (WCO). As of 18 September 2013 207 countries, territories or customs or economic unions apply the HS<sup>3</sup> Since entering into force on 1 January 1988, the HS has been regularly amended every four to six years. These amendments reflect changes in the current international trade patterns, technological progresses and customs practices.

Since the completion of negotiations on the ECT and the TA, the HS had been amended three times (2002, 2007 and 2012). The 24th Energy Charter Conference held in Nicosia, decided to technically adapt the Annexes EM I, NI and EQ I of the ECT in order to incorporate all these amendments.<sup>4</sup>

II. Correspondence table explanation

The tables below establish the correlation between the HS 1992 version for Annexes EM I and NI and HS 1996 for Annex EQ I with the newest version of the HS 2012 for those items whose description or HS number has changed. Items of Annexes EM I or EQ I not mentioned in the tables below remain unchanged. The left-hand column of the table below contains the headings and the wording as contained in the ECT Annexes EM I, NI and EQ I in HS 1992 and 1996 versions. The right-hand column contains the new text brought about by the technical changes.

The underlined text in both columns indicates the difference from another respective edition. For instance, the text underlined in the left-hand column means that this text has been removed from the latter editions of the HS. The text underlined in the right-hand column means that a new heading/subheading or part of it has been introduced in the latter editions of the HS as new entries. The underlined code number indicates that there was a renumbering, or that a new subheading number was introduced.

The case of heading 84.71 merits special mention. This heading has undergone substantial changes: some of the products previously covered by certain sub-headings of heading 84.71 have been transferred to other headings. As a result, new headings have been added to the Annexes to cover products previously covered by heading 84.71. This is further explained below.

- (m) 84.71; Automatic data processing machines and units thereof; magnetic or optical readers, machines for transcribing data onto data media in coded form and machines for processing such data, not elsewhere specified or included.

Substantial changes were made relating to the change of scope of heading 84.71 as a result of substantial amendment to Note 5 to Chapter 84, which defines the scope of heading 84.71. The relevant legal Note was amended in 2007 in order to exclude a series of articles from heading 84.71 and moving into other headings of the HS Nomenclature. The explanation for these exclusions was given in the new wording of part (D) of Note 5 to Chapter 84, which reads as follows:

“(D) Heading 84.71 does not cover the following when presented separately, even if they meet all of the conditions set forth in Note 5 (C) above:

- (i) Printers, copying machines, facsimile machines, whether or not combined;*
- (ii) Apparatus for the transmission or reception of voice, images or other data, including apparatus for communication in a wired or wireless network (such as a local or wide area network);*
- (iii) Loudspeakers and microphones;*
- (iv) Television cameras, digital cameras and video camera recorders;*
- (v) (v) Monitors and projectors, not incorporating television reception apparatus.”*

Following this 2007 amendment, a lot of articles which had been previously covered by this heading when considered to be units of automatic data processing machines, have been transferred to other headings of the Nomenclature.

Part of the products previously classified under 8471.60 and 8471.80 (HS 2002) has been transferred outside Heading 84.71. The new heading for these products and the relevant subheading are marked in italics.

In order to preserve the product coverage of EQ I, the subheadings highlighted in italics in the above correlation tables have been added to Annex EQ I.
